Hiring Manager

Nerdio

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to show that I am interested in the Technical Writer position at Nerdio. I like technology and I love explaining things, so I believe this job is for me.

In the last two years, I've worked as a Technical Writer at OpenReplay and currently at NSK.ai. My task was to create articles, documentation, and tutorials in a way that enables developers and regular users to readily grasp the usage of different tools and platforms. I also founded a small school blog named Primeunn, where I published school activity in my campus. In doing these tasks, I acquired the skill of transforming difficult ideas into simple and actionable means.

I love taking hard or technical information and making it into something readers can sit back and enjoy learning about. I prefer to talk with developers, ask questions, and get into products to discover how they work so that I can tell other people.

I am excited to be in a role to apply and help make it easier for your users to engage with your products through good content and documentation. Thank you for your consideration. I would really like to talk more about how I can contribute to your organization.

Warm regards,

Precious Ugwu
